

SURE•CHAMP[®]

IN THE CLASSROOM

SHEEP NUTRITION 101 QUIZ

On average, how much should a sheep consume on a daily basis?

- a. 4-4.5% of their body weight.
- b. 2-2.5% of their body weight.
- c. 3-3.5% of their body weight.
- d. 5-5.5% of their body weight.

Why is it important to feed forage to sheep?

- a. Because they are ruminants.
- b. Because it is a good source of fiber.
- c. Because sheep are designed to graze forages in nature.
- d. All the above.

A lamb not eating or drinking can be an indicator _____.

- a. your lamb is distracted.
- b. nothing, this is normal.
- c. you need to change feed.
- d. of sickness.

What do you adjust when it comes to frame size and body type?

- a. Protein and fat levels.
- b. Fiber and protein levels.
- c. Fat and nutrients levels.
- d. Fiber and nutrient levels.

Which ingredient should you look for on a feed tag?

- a. Protein
- b. Roughage
- c. Forage
- d. All of the above.

What do we use hay to adjust?

- a. The middles and flank lines.
- b. The loin
- c. The forequarters
- d. The legs

(Fill in the Blank) What is Amaferm[®] and how does it help your livestock?

For additional livestock nutrition and stock show resources, visit surechamp.com/blog.